

In real life

It's the story of a little who doesn't have money. She lives in the street alone. But one day, someone gives her money so she goes to a grocery and buy a chocolate bar to eat.

After that she decides to walk in the streets and she sees one of her friends. His friend is poor, like her, but he has a family. She talks with him and she decides to share with him her chocolate bar. But after she told to him that, her friend tells to her:

- "Hey, someone wants to give you money."

So, she is turnaround, of course, for takes the money, but there is nobody. She turnaround to her friend for asks to him:

- "Why did you say that, there is nobody?"

In reality her friend robbed her chocolate bar, and now he is running.

She decides to not run after him because she knows why he do that: he doesn't have money so he can't even eat. The little boy is hungry and thirsty, like her. He is tired to asks to people:" - Can I have money please?" like her. It's so difficult!

She is alone, she doesn't have money, doesn't have a family, doesn't have a house and nobody wants to help her...

It's very useless to continue, so she goes in a front of a showcase and she cried, cried just cried.

People pan in front of her but don't play attention to her...

The moral of this story is: "You can be generous, but don't forget yourself!"

"Do you really need all of you buy?"

Undated

By Mila Legrain, Neska Missiala
Kapula

WINNERS!